CS3 Technology Named a 2010 VAR Star

CS3 Technology's continued commitment to people and clients places them among the top 100 mid-market ERP technology firm providers in North America

Tulsa, OK – December 13, 2010 – CS3 Technology, a leading professional services firm offering HRMS and ERP applications to businesses across the country, is pleased to announce their inclusion in Bob Scott's 2010 VAR Stars listing.

The list honors the top 100 reselling organizations in North America. Bob Scott is an 18-year veteran journalist and has detailed knowledge of the trends and conditions affecting businesses in this industry. VAR Star recipients are known for their growth, industry leadership and innovation. According to the VAR Star article, published by Progressive Media Group and authored by Mr. Scott, firms that are thriving in the current economy are diversifying their product lines, investing in their people and increasing marketing budgets.

"We are honored to be recognized by a well-known industry analyst for our entire team's commitment to exceptional client work," said Gary Crouch, CS3 Technology's CEO. "We work hard to improve our clients' businesses every day with tools and technology to increase their effectiveness."

To ensure the CS3 Technology team continues to have the sharpest skills, employees are encouraged to continue their professional growth and development. "We invest in our team by participating in training classes to further both technical skills as well as experiential skills," said Gary. "Training opportunities hosted by Sage, the Information Technology Alliance, SHRM and the Sage Leadership Academy Alumni Association are always first rate and we are proud to be part of these organizations. In the end, our clients benefit, which is a win for everyone."
